D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS

Kronstadt.

A Romance. By MAX PEMBERTON. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Mr. Pemberton has written a stirring romance of love, adventure, and political intrigue, and no reader who begins his tale will be content to leave it unfinished. The interior of the gloomy fortress of Kronstadt, the Baltic, the Finnish islands, and London, furnish the background for swiftly moving scenes which are tense with suspended interest, with the power of love, and with the stress of peril. Although a story of the present day, the pulse of adventure and romance throbs as strongly in these pages as in a mediæval tale.

Political Crime.

By LOUIS PROAL. With an introduction by Prof. F. H. Giddings, of Columbia University. A new volume in the Criminology Series, edited by W. Douglas Morrison. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Professor Giddings's important introduction is devoted to political criminology as it has been illustrated in the United States. As to M. Proal's learned and suggestive work the London Spectator says: "At times the author's numerous illustrations, taken from various countries and ages, show that the difficulty of maintaining absolute rectitude in public affairs equals that of the rich man in his efforts to enter the kingdom of heaven. But, on the other hand, his ultimate conclusion is that, as the art of governing is one of the most noble, so the actual exercise of the art is compatible with the loftiest standard of integrity."

Italian Literature.

By RICHARD GARNETT, C.B., LL.D. A new volume in the Literatures of the World Series, edited by Edmund Gosse. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Dr. Garnett's abundant scholarship and power of discrimination have furnished an admirable equipment for the preparation of this needed work. In traversing the broad field of Italian literature he has not confined himself simply to a few masterpieces, but, without burdening his story with details, he indicates characteristic phases and significant movements, which are happily illustrated. His work is clear, interesting, and informing.

Arachne.

An Egyptian Romance. By Dr. GEORG EBERS, author of "Uarda," "Joshua," "An Egyptian Princess," etc. Uniform Edition. In two volumes. 16mo, per vol., cloth, 75 cents; paper, 40 cents.

In "Arachne" Dr. Ebers returns to the Egyptian field in which he has gained such wide popularity. The story opens in 274 B.C. The opening scenes are laid in a little town near the Nile Delta, and later the movement of the romance transfers the reader to Alexandria.

Outlines of the Earth's History.

By Prof. N. S. SHALER, of Harvard University. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

Professor Shaler's comprehensive knowledge and graphic style have imparted to this popular study in physiography a peculiar distinction. In its wide range of information and the lucidity with which the various themes are treated, the book possesses a value which will be appreciated by many readers and by students.

The Story of Photography.

By ALFRED T. STORY. A new volume in the Library of Useful Stories. 16mo, cloth, 40 cents.

"Photography is bound up with the theory of light, and hence with solar physics, spectrum analysis, chemistry, optics, and, as we have recently seen in the discovery of the X rays, with electricity. As to its practical application, its achievements in the department of industry alone, and its relation to painting, design, and illustration, . . . present one of the most interesting subjects for study that any one can take up. . . . It is to introduce the subject in this light that these pages have been written, not so much with the object of producing a manual to teach photography as an art, but, while giving due weight to that side of the subject, to present it in its more scientific aspects."—From the Introduction.

NOTES IN SEASON.

DODD, MEAD & CO. have published Willis J. Abbot's "Naval History of the United States" in a single volume of over 1000 pages. It has been revised and augmented, and contains illustrations by H. W. McVicar and W. C. Jackson.

DOUBLEDAY & MCCLURE CO. have just ready the fifth volume of their Tales from McClure's, entitled "War, being True Stories of Camp and Battlefield." The opening story, "The Bravest Deeds I Ever Knew," is by General Miles; the other stories are by Major Calhoun, Captain Mackay, and others. The volume contains several illustrations.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish shortly an important work on "Diabetes Mellitus and Its Treatment," by Dr. R. T. Williamson, of the Manchester (Eng.) Royal Infirmary, with 18 illustrations, two of which will be colored; also, "Animal Intelligence," by Wesley Mills, who treats his subject from the point of view of the comparative psychologist and from the physiological standpoint.

LITTLE, BROWN & CO., to head off further competition have reduced the trade price of their paper edition of "Quo Vadis" to nine cents a copy. It is gratifying to note that the trade has loyally supported Little, Brown & Co. in their endeavors to protect every one concerned against the unauthorized editions. The fact that up to the present time they have sold 600,000 copies of this novel is in itself evidence of their policy.

HENRY HOLT & CO. have just published an amusing book entitled "Her Ladyship's Elephant," by David Dwight Wells, the son of David A. Wells, the politico-economist. The story deals with English society and has grown out of certain experiences of the author while a member of our embassy in London. Mr. Wells takes the precaution to assure his readers that he didn't invent the elephant, but that this elephant's performances are based on facts.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just issued "Pendennis," the second volume in the new Biographical edition of Thackeray; and "Thirty Strange Stories," the first volume of short stories by H. G. Wells, originally brought out in this country by John Lane, but now issued in new form. In this volume the author uses his marvellous imagination in treating the curiosities of nineteenth century science. John A. Himes, professor of English in Pennsylvania College, has made a profound study of Milton, and the publishers have just issued "Paradise Lost," with his valuable general survey of the great epic and about half the volume devoted to notes of great scientific and theological importance.

D. APPLETON & CO. have just ready Max Pemberton's eagerly expected story, entitled "Kronstadt," a story of the present day, showing the interior of the gloomy fortress of Kronstadt on the Baltic, and offering interesting facts on the scenery and politics of the Finnish islands; and "Arachne," an Egyptian romance by Georg Ebers. A new volume in the Library of Useful Stories is "The Story of Photography," by Alfred T. Story; Professor N. S. Shaler, of Harvard University, has produced another of his accurately scientific and strangely fascinating books, entitled "Outlines of the Earth's History"; and a new volume is added to the Criminology Series, entitled "Political Crime," written by Louis Proal, and furnished with an introduction by Professor F. H. Giddings, of Columbia University.

ESTES & LAURIAT are publishing an edition of Walter Scott's novels in twenty-five volumes, each having a comprehensive introduction by Andrew Lang, who, through Walter Scott's granddaughter, Mrs. Maxwell Scott, secured access to the manuscripts at Abbotsford. Copious notes and glossaries have also been furnished by the editor, an acknowledged expert on historical fiction. The illustrations for the set of books number 125 etchings and photogravures made from original drawings by noted European artists, and printed on Dickinson's etching paper. The text is printed from new electrotype plates. There will also be an Illustrated Cabinet edition of these novels in forty-eight volumes, with 250 illustrations; and also Illustrated Cabinet editions of George Eliot, Thackeray, Dickens, Victor Hugo, Ruskin, and Prescott. These are the books formerly published by Merrill & Baker.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p., in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S. Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. (4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.), D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. 48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Allen, E: Heron. Violin-making as it was and is: being an historical, theoretical, and practical treatise on the science and art of violin-making, for the use of violin makers and players, amateur and professional; preceded by an essay on the violin and its position as a musical instrument. 2d ed. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1898. 366 p. il. 8°, cl., $3. [1559

Bandello, Matteo. Certain tragical discourses of Bandello; tr. into English by Geffraie Fenton, anno 1657; with an introd. by Rob. Langton Douglas. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1898. 2 v., 273; 272 p. 12°, (Tudor translations.) cl., net, $10. [1560

Barrows, Rev. S: J. The isles and shrines of Greece. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1898. c. 10+389 p. il. O. cl., $2. [1561

Dr. Barrows says: "In fulfilling a desire to enter Greece by the portals of the Odyssey, and to leave it through the Trojan gates of the Iliad, my trip included the Ionian Islands, the Peloponnesus, Phocis, Thessaly, Attica, the Ægean Islands, and Troy." His work is an especially sympathetic and scholarly description of the past and present glories of Greece, written only as a man of broad culture could write. Index. Index of Greek words.

Beiley, U. Jos. Der praktische Deutsche. 2d ed. rev. N. Y., W: R. Jenkins, 1898. c. 2+251 p. D. cl., $1. [1562

Der Praktische Deutsche is arranged after the plan of Paul Bercy's Le Français Pratique, but it is by no means a translation of that book. The original plan has been preserved, but the exercises reconstructed and fitted to the particular needs of the student of German. The aim has been to provide the material necessary to enable the learner to converse with Germans in their own language. Roman type is used throughout excepting in a few lessons, and a vocabulary is at the end of the volume.

Bible. New Testament. The Gospel according to St. Matthew; with notes critical and practical, by Rev. M. F. Sadler. New cheaper ed. N. Y., The Macmillan Co., 1898. 42+494 p. 12°, cl., $1.50. [1563

Blundell, Mrs. M. E. Sweetman, ["M. E. Francis," pseud.] The duenna of a genius. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1898. c. 4+368 p. D. cl., $1.50. [1564

Two young Hungarian girls, both of whom are musical and one a genius, come to London to find recognition. The "genius" is master of the violin, but her life is a failure up to a certain point, when she meets Paul Waldenek, the great pianist, who loves her and does homage to her great talents. The sister wins the love of a rich man, and the simple stories of both girls end happily.

Botsford, G: Willis. The development of the Athenian constitution. N. Y., The Macmillan Co., 1898. 8+249 p. 8°, (Cornell studies in classical philology, no. 4.) bds., net, $1.50. [1565

Bottone, S. R. Radiography and the X rays in practice and theory; with constructional and manipulatory details. N. Y., The Macmillan Co., 1898. 10+176 p. il. 12°, cl., $1. [1566

Bulfinch, T: The age of fable; or, beauties of mythology. New ed.; with notes, revisions, and additions, by W: H. Klapp; with nearly 200 il. and a complete index. Phil., H: Altemus, 1898. c. '97. 12+456 p. por. D. cl., $1.25. [1567

A new edition of a standard work brought up to the present time by the editor, in art, literature, and archæology; some obsolete or inaccurate statements of the original have been omitted, and some few poetical quotations from authors now somewhat out of date. Considerable material has been added and many obscure references verified. The editor has incorporated these additions into the text, rather than give them as separate notes.

Cadet, Felix, ed. Saint-Cyrian, Arnauld, Lancelot, Nicole, De Saci, Guyot, Coustel, Fontaine, Jacqueline Pascal: extracts, with an introd. by Felix Cadet; tr., with an index, by Adnah D. Jones. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1898. 260 p. 12°, cl., $1.50. [1568

Church, Rev. Alfred J. Stories from English history; from Julius Cæsar to Queen Victoria. New ed. rev. N. Y., The Macmillan Co., 1898. 10+676 p. il. 12°, cl., $1.25. [1569

Cicero, Marcus Tullius. Laelius: De amicitia; ed., with introd. and notes, by J: K. Lord. New rev. ed. N. Y., American Book Co., [1898.] c. 2–109 p. D. cl., 70 c. [1570

The text is that of Baiter and Kayser. Any changes from the standard text are mentioned in the notes. The aim of the notes has been to furnish all explanations that seem necessary for the clear understanding of points of grammar, history, biography, and ancient customs. The introduction gives an account of Cicero's life, and describes the "Laelius."

Crelles, A. L. Calculating tables; giving the products of every two numbers from one to one thousand, and their application to the multiplication and division of all numbers above one thousand; rev. by C. Bremiker. N. Y., Lemcke & Buechner, 1898. 12+999 p. F. cl., $5. [1571

Grillparzer, Franz. Sappho; ed., with an introd., notes, and appendices, by Walter Rippmann. N. Y., The Macmillan Co., 1898. 53+157 p. 16°, (Siepmann's German ser.) cl., net, 75 c. [1586

Hadley, J. V. Seven months a prisoner. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1898. c. 4+258 p. nar. S. (Ivory ser.) cl., 75 c. [1587

A chapter in the early life of Judge Hadley, of Indiana. During the last year of the late war he was made a prisoner and spent seven months in a Confederate prison, from which he ultimately escaped after some thrilling experience. His adventures within the limits of the Confederacy, in trying to get north, are more highly colored than anything to be found in fiction. The risks run, the privations suffered, the scenes through which the prisoner and his companions passed among the wilds of Georgia and the Carolinas, aided by loyal negroes and poor whites, is most sensational reading.

Hamilton, Alex., Madison, Ja., and Jay, J: The Federalist: a commentary on the constitution of the United States; ed., with notes, illustrative documents, and a copious index, by Paul Leicester Ford. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1898. c. 76+793 p. D. cl., $2.50. [1588

This edition of "The Federalist" is designed primarily for the use of students. Its new features are the inclusion for the first time of Hamilton's preliminary outline of "The Federalist" and his table of contents and his introduction, published in the earliest edition; a new table of contents, giving fuller treatment, which is repeated at the beginning of each essay, to facilitate quick reference; the date of publication of each number, with the name of the newspaper in which it appeared, has been for the first time obtained and prefixed to each essay. The text has also been annotated, showing how subsequent events are related to the views expressed in the text. The appendix contains the Articles of Confederation and the Constitution, with references to the decisions of the Supreme Courts bearing on each clause, all important amendments proposed, with other valuable documents. Full index.

Hyde, W: De Witt. The evolution of the college student. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1898.] c. 2–39 p. D. cl., 35 c. [1591

This sketch, by the president of Bowdoin College, was made for the University Club of Buffalo in response to a request for something which would "show the graduate the inner life of the college of to-day." Under the title "His college life" it was published in Scribner's Magazine for June, 1896. It consists of a series of imaginative letters passing between a living college student and his family and friends. Freshman sorrows, Sophomore conceits, Junior misgivings, and Senior prospects are thus put vitally before the reader.

Ladd, E. F. A manual of quantitative chemical analysis. N. Y., J: Wiley & Sons, 1898. c. 6+82 p. D. cl., $1. [1597

This little manual is intended for the use of beginners in quantitative analysis, and is in no way designed for the use of the professional chemist. The methods selected are not the ones that would always give the most reliable results in professional work, but rather are those that represent principles that will aid in developing the reasoning power of the student.

Law, Ernest. The royal gallery of Hampton Court, illustrated: being an historical catalogue of the pictures in the Queen's collection at that palace, with descriptive biographical notes. New ed. rev. and enl. N. Y., The Macmillan Co., 1898. 13+336 p. il. 4°, buckram, net, $10. [1598

Lyde, Lionel W. A geography of North America, including the West Indies. N. Y., The Macmillan Co., 1898. 6+116 p. 16°, cl., net, 50 c. [1599

McConachie, Lauros G. Congressional committees: a study of the origins and development of our national and local legislative methods. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1898.] c. 14+441 p. D. (Library of economics and politics.) cl., $1.75. [1600

With our legislative assemblies modelled on the English Parliament, it was natural for the writer to go back to British beginnings, and thence to trace the idea of subdivision down to modern times, especially to the period succeeding the Civil War, when the sudden and vast augmentation of legislative burdens brought about a complete breakdown of parliamentary machinery on the floor of Congress. The work covers both branches of Congress, and is filled with an interesting array of facts, criticisms, and arguments. It may be safely said that no one can thoroughly understand the enormous power wielded by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and other anomalies in a supposed elective Folk Congress without a study of this book. A list of works cited, with dates and places of publication (6 p.). Index

The waters of Caney Fork Creek, which flow through the hill country of northern Tennessee, are believed by some people of that locality to have magical properties. Caney Fork plays an important part in the history of the heroine. As she was running away from a tragic scene of her childhood she fell into the creek, and after her rescue her mind was a blank. Doctor Mitford Hubbell, who returns home after years of absence, tells the strange and tragic story of "Lady Edwards," dwelling on her miraculous recovery on the banks of the Caney Fork.

A story of South Africa and of the present. The main incident is similar to Jameson's raid on Johannesburg, with a like ending. But names of persons and places are fictitious. The hero, Fraser of Glencoe, a Scotchman who had resigned his commission in the India service, being suspected of treachery, comes to Belaland and enlists in the police. He has the opportunity to redeem his good name, and does it bravely. There is a pretty love-tale. The teller of the story is a rich American travelling in South Africa.

Shakespeare, W: Poems; ed. with an introd. and notes by G: Wyndham. N. Y., T: Y. Crowell & Co., [1898.] 146+343 p. O. cl., $2. [1626

Contains an admirable text of the "Venus," the "Lucrece," and the "Sonnets," founded on the first quartos. Mr. Wyndham in his notes deals with the various vexed questions of the dates to be assigned, the problem of the rival poets and the idiosyncrasies of typography and punctuation, all enlightened by multifarious quotations from contemporary works on philosophy, criticism, heraldry, sport, and etymology. In an introduction he gives one of the most satisfactory of sketches of Shakespeare's life. He brings out the characteristics of these immortal poems, treating of their lyrical and rhythmical beauties, their richness of allusion and their splendor of imagery.

Shaler, Nathaniel Southgate. Outlines of the earth's history: a popular study in physiography. N. Y., Appleton, 1898. c. 6+417 p. il. D. cl., $1.75. [1627

"The object of this book is to provide the beginner in the study of the earth's history with a general account of those actions which can be readily understood and which will afford him clear understandings as to the nature of the processes which have made this and other celestial spheres. It has been the writer's purpose to select those series of facts which serve to show the continuous operations of energy, so that the reader might be helped to a truer conception of the nature of this sphere than he can obtain from ordinary text-books."—Preface. Index.

CONCERNING BOOKWORMS.*

ALL that relates to books and bookishness has been so often and so thoroughly chronicled that the discovery of a fresh path in this well-worn field is no easy matter. Yet such a path is found in the trail of the bookworm, and it has been followed with success by the Rev. J. F. X. O'Conor, who now sets forth the results of his investigations in a little volume that is an important original contribution to the literature of books and libraries.

The bookworm, of the non-biped variety, has long furnished food for speculation, but of its actual history and characteristics little that is definite has been known. The sum total of the knowledge gleaned concerning it, from Aristotle down, was set forth by Blades in his "Enemies to Books"; but much of this gleaning was pure fancy. These conjectures and the sprightly remarks of Andrew Lang on the subject, are familiar to most book-lovers, but they have served rather to invest the bookworm with an atmosphere of fable than to lead to a serious investigation of the subject. "And yet," says Father O'Conor, "I may be allowed to say, upon positive knowledge, that the bookworm is no rarity, but is a reality, and doing most decided mischief."

It was while librarian of Georgetown University that Father O'Conor met his first bookworm and became absorbed in this new field of research. He tells us: "As I held in my hands an open folio bound in leather, a little ridge of dust along the inner edge of the binding attracted my attention. On closer examination I found small holes near the edge of the dust heaps. Taking a penknife I raised the paper on the inside of the cover. When behold! there before me lay a little brown insect. It was covered with bristles and looked for all the world like a tiny hedgehog, curling himself in his spikes to secure protection. I continued the investigation, and in the same book soon found another, his counterpart. Here was a discovery, in truth! 'This must be a bookworm,' I thought. 'But how can it be'?"

These first specimens were sent, through Mr. Spofford, of the Congressional Library, to Prof. Baird, of the Smithsonian Institution, who forwarded them to Mr. Riley, chief of the Entomological Commission, and their discoverer continued his researches in this new field of exploration "with no less energy and earnestness than any prospector in his search for gold." The study of bookworms, thus begun, was continued during Father O'Conor's services as librarian of Boston College, of St. Joseph's College, Philadelphia, and of St. Francis Xavier's College, New York; nor was it confined only to collections immediately accessible. Personal inquiries were made at the libraries of Brown University, Harvard University, the Boston Athenæum, the Boston Public Library, the Peabody and Congressional libraries, and the Astor, Lenox, and Mercantile libraries of New York. Since these inquiries were begun, and the attention of librarians directed to the subject, bookworms have been found at the Astor and Lenox libraries, "and there is but little doubt that examination will prove the disastrous presence of many more."

Seven varieties of bookworm have been personally examined by Father O'Conor, the specimens seen of each variety ranging from three or four to thirty. In summarizing these different varieties, it may be well to repeat, what is now generally known, that the bookworm is really no worm at all, but the larva of certain insects, of the order of coleoptera, or sheath-winged beetles. The seven varieties mentioned are, respectively, Sitodrepa panicea, larva; Sitodrepa panicea, full-grown insect; Attagenus pellio, larva; Lepisma saccharina; Ptinus fur; Dermestes lardarius; Anthrenus varius, larva.

Of the first named, thirty specimens were examined, these having been found in modern as well as ancient books, and under covers of leather, board, or parchment. This, the most voracious of the destructive brotherhood, is in the larva state a soft, white, six-legged "worm," covered with bristles, about one-eighth of an inch long and sluggish in movement. Of the full-grown insect twenty specimens were found, alive and dead, in books old and new; in this state it is very small and brown in color.

The Attagenus pellio was found only once, but seems to have been the prize beauty of the collection. "Long, slender, salmon-colored, with a tail of delicate wavy hair," it is compared in shape to "a miniature whale," while its movements are described as "most graceful."

* Facts about bookworms: their history in literature and work in libraries; by Rev. J. F. X. O'Conor, S.J. N. Y., F. P. Harper, 1898. 88 p. il. D.

The Lepisma saccharina is first recorded in Hooke's "Micrographia" (1665), where it is described as "a small, white, silver shining worm or moth," three-tailed and two-horned, and pictured in a rude sketch. This account is quoted by Blades with the comment that the ancient chronicler had "apparently evolved both engraving and description from his inner consciousness." But evidently the older writer was correct, and his modern critic erred, for of the Lepisma Father O'Conor has examined four specimens, and he describes it as cone-shaped, of a silver-gray tint, with three thick tails, and very rapid in its motions; it lives in books, but is less destructive to them than the Sitodrepa.

The Ptinus fur is a black-headed worm, resembling the Sitodrepa; it "is found in great numbers and seems willing to eat anything." One specimen is mentioned by Blades, who remarks, "I never heard of a black-headed bookworm before or since," and suggests that its special characteristic may be due to a diet of black-letter text.

The Dermestes lardarius is found in large numbers in books, as in collections of dried plants, furs, etc., and is compared to "a microscopic hedgehog, bristling all over with rough black hairs." It leaves rougher marks upon its prey than do any of the other varieties, and prefers binding to text. The Anthrenus varius has a similar preference, and is an oval-shaped larva, varying in form "between the almost round Dermestes and the elongated Attagenus pellio."

Of all the varieties named, sketches as well as descriptions are furnished, so that the bookworm hunter will have little difficulty in identifying his game. The havoc wrought by these little creatures can hardly be realized by those who have not examined their handiwork. Father O'Conor says: "With a slight pull I have been able to detach all the binding from the books. The bookworm had eaten away the back. Sometimes the holes cut through the pages are round and regular, and extend in a straight line from cover to cover. Very often there are deep channels cut into the book, irregular in outline, and these channels will be longer or shorter, and across the width or length of the book. Some pages will be slightly perforated; in others there will be several furrows separated by spaces untouched. Apparently some 'worms' have a fanciful appetite. Not infrequently a 'worm' burrows deep in a large folio. In a leather-bound folio of Plutarch I found a hole piercing through cover and pages, and in another hole, embedded in the cover, the cocoon of an insect which had not pierced entirely through the cover. In another folio, page after page is pierced. Halfway through the book he ceased work." Nor is it safe to guard only ancient volumes and accept Blades' assurance that the bookworm will not touch our adulterated modern paper. Father O'Conor has found their ravages in recent books as well as in aged tomes, but they are not, of course, discoverable in books in general use. Dusty and unhandled volumes afford them their opportunities, and if these conditions be granted they pay little heed to age or other qualities.

There remain the problems of discovering the bookworm, and of preventing his ravages. His detection is not difficult. "Inspect closely the back of the bound volume. There you may discover little smooth, round holes that could have been made with a large needle. Sometimes these holes are at the lower end of the back of the volume; sometimes they will be found along the edges of the back. Should the back seem to be perfect, then open the book. Between the cover and the fly-leaf you may perceive a little ridge or heap of dust—red, gray, or white, according to the color of the binding. If you do perceive such a ridge, the bookworm has been or is in your book. With the point of a knife raise the paper pasted to the cover near the dust heap, and there you will find a Sitodrepa, or Ptinus, or Anthrenus. Clear him out at once; scrape the book until you are sure there are no unhatched eggs left."

Prevention is another matter. There is no lack of suggestions, none of which are especially practical. Pyrethrum powder, scattered on books or shelves, camphor, fumigation by tobacco, the use of poisoned paste in binding, all these have been recommended, but experience shows that the only solution that promises effectiveness is to be found in a thorough overhauling of the library twice or thrice each year, and the individual dusting of each separate book, not with a duster but with a cloth. Dust, poor ventilation, and lack of light furnish the bookworm's element, and by the elimination of these he also may be eliminated.

These are, briefly, the facts that Father O'Conor has gathered and set forth in his little volume, and their value will be patent to all who have to deal with books. The material—the result of long and patient observation and research—is almost entirely new, it is handled most attractively, and the facts presented answer fully and finally the oft-repeated question, Are there bookworms?

ENVELOPE MAKERS COMBINE.

Ten large envelope companies have been consolidated into a syndicate to be known as the United States Envelope Company. The total capital is $7,000,000, of which $2,000,000 will be in bonds and the rest in capital stock. The total output of the companies represented is 17,000,000 envelopes a day, which is 90 per cent. of the output of commercial envelopes. Charles H. Hutchins, president of the Crompton & Knowles Loom Works, of Worcester, Mass., will be president of the syndicate; James Lang, of Worcester, W. H. Prescott, of Rockville, Conn., and Elisha Morgan, of Springfield, Mass., vice-presidents; Robert W. Day, treasurer; and Walter T. Morse, of Springfield, Mass., secretary.

The companies in the agreement are the Morgan Envelope Company, P. P. Kellogg & Co., and the Springfield Envelope Co., of Springfield, Mass.; the Holyoke Envelope Company, of Holyoke, Mass.; Logan, Swift & Brigham, the Whitcombe Envelope Company, the Wade H. Hill Envelope Company, of Worcester, Mass.; the National Envelope Company, of Milwaukee, Wis.; the White Corbin Company, of Rockville, Conn.; and the Plimpton Manufacturing Company, of Hartford, Conn. The Plimpton-Morgan Envelope Company, of Hartford, has not sold the Government stamped envelope plant to the new company, but will retain it as an independent concern.

CHARLES E. HAMMETT, JR., RETIRES FROM THE BOOK TRADE.

AFTER having been in business on Thames Street, Newport, R. I., for fifty-two years and three months, Charles E. Hammett, Jr., retired on the 15th inst., having disposed of his book and stationery business to Simon Hart, who, for twelve years, has been Mr. Hammett's trusted assistant.

CHARLES E. HAMMETT, JR.
From the Newport Daily News.

Mr. Hammett, in 1844, started in business as a grocer at the corner of Thames and Prospect Hill Streets. Two years later he sold out and opened a bookstore in Oak Row, a building a few doors north of his present quarters. He continued there for ten years, when he purchased the building on Thames Street, at the corner of Cotton's Court. At this corner he remained uninterruptedly until the present day, though the building itself has been changed and enlarged until there is practically nothing left of the old shop.

Mr. Hammett, besides looking after his book and stationery business, at different times engaged in various other branches. For many years he conducted a bookbindery, which gained a reputation for solid and artistic work. At another time he was extensively engaged in the manufacture of envelopes and paper boxes; then in the mounting and framing of pictures; in inventing games and manufacturing them for the trade; in making maps; and in the publishing of books and pamphlets, the translation of some of which from the French and German was done under his direction.

To all of these interests Mr. Hammett gave the closest personal attention, and frequently he took a hand in the manual work itself. His was a busy life in every respect, and he certainly has earned the right to rest from his labors. As a matter of fact, we suspect that this will not happen, as we understand that Mr. Hammett has a goodly number of literary interests in hand and will probably devote much of his time in furthering them.

Mr. Hammett has also been identified with the public life of his city. He was for years a member and chairman of the school committee, in which he did good service, and where his foresight helped much in advancing the usefulness of the public schools. He was one of the original members of the park commission, a trustee of the Savings Bank of Newport, a director of the Redwood Library, and a trustee of the Newport Hospital. Mr. Hammett was the first bookseller in Rhode Island, if not in New England, to employ women as assistants.

THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE MEMBERS' COMPLIMENTARY DINNER.

THE "Complimentary Dinner," given by the Booksellers' League at the Zangheri Restaurant, New York City, on the evening of the 18th, was an enjoyable and quite successful affair. The League was exceptionally favored by fine weather that brought out over one hundred members and their friends. Among the guests were Dr. Thomas Dunn English, Rossiter Johnson, S. M. Marvin of Charles Scribner's Sons, and Rear-Admiral Bancroft Gherardi, U. S. N. J. N. Wing, as chairman of the Entertainment Committee, acted as Master of Ceremonies, and called upon Rev. C. S. Cutter, formerly connected with the book trade, to ask a blessing. The first speaker was Rossiter Johnson, who in a very happy vein gave his early experiences as a journalist. In closing he read, by request, "The Triumph of Robert McGinnis," from his book of sketches, entitled "The End of a Rainbow."

Mr. Marvin, the next speaker, contrasted the old methods of making books with those that obtain now, and regretted that in the transition some of the advantages of the old had either been entirely lost or bid fair eventually to disappear. This, he thought, was especially true of wood-engraving. In concluding, he urged upon his hearers the desirability of fostering the sentiment of fellowship, not only among themselves, but with all allied societies whose aim and ideal it is to elevate the standard of their profession.

Dr. English, the statesman, journalist, and author of the favorite ballad, "Ben Bolt," etc., though in poor health, nevertheless succeeded in holding the attention of his audience from beginning to end, and richly earned the generous applause with which he was hailed when he rose and when he concluded his talk. Dr. English for over sixty years has taken an active and at times a prominent part in the development of the literature and politics of this country. Naturally he has come in contact with many men of note, of the traits and characteristics of some of whom he gave interesting thumb-nail sketches. He alluded to the development of modern magazine literature which, in Philadelphia, grew out of The Casket and Burton's Magazine, semi-eclectic publications, and had its culmination in Graham's Magazine, which he considered as the pioneer of the present-day periodicals devoted entirely to original reading matter and illustrations. In recalling the New York Mirror, edited by N. P. Willis, George P. Morris, and Theodore Sedgwick Fay, he reminded his hearers that Mr. Fay still lived in Berlin, at the ripe age of ninety-one.

Admiral Gherardi, one of the heroes of the battle of Mobile Bay, gave an interesting talk on the changes in the navy from the time when, in 1846, he entered the service as midshipman on board of the Ohio until the present day. On the conclusion of his talk he was enthusiastically cheered.

The speeches were interspersed with the singing of patriotic songs by the League.

WORK OF THE AMERICAN SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION.

REV. EDWIN W. RICE, Secretary of Publications, reported that the Union had offered 100,000 of its books for a "knapsack library" to be furnished to the army and navy of the United States in camps, hospitals, and on shipboard. This offer has been accepted by the National Relief Commission, and the books are being supplied at the rate of about a thousand a day.

The gratuitous supply of the Society's publications to penitentiaries, prisons, jails, reformatories, and hospitals throughout the United States, which has been prosecuted for several years past, has been continued during the past year, with gratifying results. The wardens and chaplains in charge of these institutions have acknowledged with the warmest thanks the helpful influences of this class of literature in caring for the unfortunate classes under their care. About 300,000 publications were supplied for 59 institutions last year, and 200,000 thus far since March 1, 1898.

The Union has recently undertaken to distribute religious literature regularly in every home, especially in rural communities and small towns where such literature is not easy to obtain through ordinary channels. It is expected that a home visitor will be secured in every community competent to undertake the work in an efficient manner, distributing literature not only by sale, but giving some leaflet at every home where people are not able nor disposed to buy.

The Union is the residuary legatee of the Rev. Seth Collins Brace, who died recently in Philadelphia, leaving the residuary portion of his estate to the Society for the purpose of publishing and distributing literature to counteract modern skepticism. The Society will receive about $15,000 from this source.

During the year it has published 78 new books and new editions, issuing 137,250 copies, and 16 books or smaller publications, issuing 24,650 copies, exclusive of periodicals and lesson helps. The graduating classes in Lincoln University, Hampton Institute, Atlanta University, Biddle University, and Tuskegee Institute have also been supplied freely with some of its publications specially suited to aid the ministers and Christian workers going out from these schools of learning.

STATUS OF THE "AMENDING BILL" OF THE ENGLISH COPYRIGHT LAW.

WE have received from the secretary of the Publishers' Association of Great Britain and Ireland the following statement concerning the status of the bill for amending the English law of copyright, approved by the association at its recent annual meeting, and referred to in our issue of April 16, 1898:

An Amending Bill promoted by the Society of Authors was introduced into the House of Lords in the session of 1897 and passed a second reading.

It has again been introduced in 1898, but there has also been laid before the House of Lords a much more extensive and far-reaching bill to consolidate and amend the whole copyright law.

The existing act is that of 1842. Since that time various subsidiary measures have been passed to meet the pressing needs caused by the rapid increase of the professions and industries interested in literary and artistic property.

For nearly a quarter of a century the Copyright Association has been engaged in preparing a consolidating and amending bill to remove the anomalies and confusion which now exist.

During these years their draft has been undergoing constant revision and improvement, and last autumn it was referred to a special committee composed of the representatives of authors, publishers, artists, dramatists, journalists, engravers, music sellers, and photographers—a practical test to which, it is believed, no previous bill has been subjected. This committee was occupied throughout the winter in completing the preparation of the draft, and the bill was introduced in the House of Lords by Lord Herschell in March.

It has been referred to a strong committee of the House, and there is every reason to hope that the much-needed Copyright act is now within measurable distance of becoming law, if not this session, at any rate at no very remote date.

Sir Martin Conway, at the annual dinner of the Incorporated Society of Authors, held at the Holborn Restaurant, on the evening of the 2d inst., said that though it was not hoped that the two copyright bills before Parliament would pass into law in the coming session, the fact that they were before Parliament would attract attention to the many questions connected with copyright which demanded attention and solution. With regard to the Canadian bill, they were likely, owing largely to the energetic and able help of Hall Caine, to have an act passed which would be eminently satisfactory to all English authors and to the Canadian people.

WAR POSTAGE BILL.

REPRESENTATIVE BROMWELL, of Ohio, a member of the Committee on Post Office and Post Roads, has introduced a bill to increase the rates of postage. He proposes to make letter postage three cents an ounce instead of two; on second-class matter, newspapers, periodicals, books, two cents a pound instead of one, and on third-class matter, merchandise, samples, one cent an ounce instead of one-half cent. These changes on the current business of the post-office service would add about $40,000,000 annually. Mr. Bromwell proposes it as a war measure purely, and the operation of the bill is to be limited to the continuance of hostilities.

BOOKS FOR THE SOLDIERS.

THE Daughters of the American Revolution have taken steps to provide reading matter for the soldiers in camp. No one appreciates books and newspapers more than those who are unable to get them, and, secluded as they are, the soldiers at Chickamauga and Tampa will welcome reading matter as a blessing. The New York City Chapter has established bureaus for the reception of reading matter at 203 Broadway, Room 810, and at Sherry's, Fifth Avenue and 37th Street. Books, magazines, and illustrated journals are solicited, and will be forwarded as speedily as possible to the various camps.

OBITUARY NOTES.

WILLIAM EWART GLADSTONE.

BORN 1809, died 1898! Almost a century of English history is embraced in the life of the statesman who died May 18, at his home at Hawarden. Born six years before the battle of Waterloo, Gladstone witnessed a transformation of the political and social life of every European country, and watched and studied many epoch-making discoveries of science and invention. The facts of Gladstone's career have been told so often that it seems almost superfluous to sum them up once more. He was the fourth son of a successful merchant of Liverpool, and from the hour of his birth had every advantage that education and money can procure. He passed from Eton to Oxford, and in 1831 obtained the "double first"—the highest academic honors in mathematics, physics, and letters. Gladstone's parliamentary career began in 1832. He was Junior Lord of the Treasury in 1834, Under-Secretary for the Colonies in 1835, Vice-President of the Board of Trade in 1841, President of the same Board in 1843, Secretary for the Colonies in 1846, Chancellor of the Exchequer in 1852–'55, 1859–'66, and 1873–'74, and Prime Minister for four terms, beginning in 1868, 1880, 1885, and 1892. He finally retired in 1895. He served in the Ministries of Sir Robert Peel, the Earl of Aberdeen, Viscount Palmerston, and Earl Russell, and was leader either for the Government or for the Opposition for twenty-two years, with the exception of the interregnum when the Marquis of Hartington took his place. During this long period of official and parliamentary service nearly all the great reform measures which serve as landmarks of English progress during the century have been enacted.

The great natural gifts and unlimited power of work which had gained a "double first" at Oxford were conspicuous all through his busy life, and his fame as a classical scholar is equal to his renown as a statesman. His writings have appeared in almost every magazine of note, and have covered an amazing variety of subjects. Among his published books the most notable are "Ecce Homo," "Juventus Mundi," "Italy and Her Church," "Speeches of Pius IX.," "Vatican Decrees," "Impregnable Rock of Holy Scripture," "Studies Subsidiary to the Works of Bishop Butler," "Gleanings of Past Years," eight volumes published at different times, the latest in 1897; "The Eastern Crisis," "The Turco-Servian War," "The Country and the Government," "Might of Right," "Landmarks of Homeric Study," "Homeric Synchronism," "On Books and the Housing of Them," etc. With all his incessant work, Mr. Gladstone found time to keep abreast of the current literature of the world, and many books of every variety of subject have been enriched with prefaces by him, while almost every book that has been popular during the past ten years has been honored by a word from Gladstone in some widely-read periodical. During the past two years three books have appeared that are excellent studies of his achievements: Lucy's "A Diary of the Home Rule Parliament, 1892–1895"; McCarthy's "Story of Gladstone's Life"; and "The Political Life of Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone," illustrated with cartoons and sketches from Punch, a very exhaustive work in two volumes. It is said that the House of Commons are making arrangements to do their great chief national funeral honors.

JULIUS ISRAEL, bookseller, died in Ocala, Fla., April 25, aged sixty-nine. He was a German by birth, and came to this country before he was twenty. He established himself in the book business in Ocala in 1881.

MISS PHILENA MCKEEN, for thirty-three years principal of Abbott Academy, at Andover, Mass., died on the 14th inst. She was born in Bradford, Vt., seventy-six years ago, and resigned as principal of the Abbott Academy six years ago. She was the author of several books, among them a "History of Abbott Academy."

WILLIAM STEVENS PERRY, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of Iowa, died in Dubuque, Iowa, on the 13th inst. He was born in Providence, R. I., January 22, 1832. He was widely known for his contributions to church history. He was associated with Dr. John Cotton Smith in editing The Church Monthly in 1864. In the same year he published, with Dr. F. L. Hawks, the "Documentary History of the Protestant Episcopal Church," and also later "Historical Collections of the American Colonial Church," including Virginia, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Maryland, and Delaware, in separate volumes. Among his other works were "Some Summer Days Abroad," "History of the American Episcopal Church," two volumes, and "Life Lessons from the Book of Proverbs." He also published numerous sermons and Episcopal addresses.

JOHN BRADBURN, who for a number of years was in the second-hand book business in New York, died on the 12th inst. at his residence, 134 East 62d Street, New York. He was born in County Westmeath, Ireland, in 1805, and came to this country in 1820. He began as a book peddler, carrying his small stock about in a basket. He did a fairly thriving business in books of travel and navigation with the crews of the ships in the harbor. In 1845 he opened a book-stand at the southeast corner of Fulton and Nassau Streets, where he remained until 1852, when he removed to the northwest corner of Ann and Nassau Streets. Bradburn made a specialty of law, theological, and medical books at a time when few other dealers gave them house-room, and so he gradually worked up a profitable business, the proceeds of which he invested in uptown real estate, also at a time when he could get property at almost his own price. In 1868 his speculations began to bear fruit, and he gave up his book business to his brother Thomas, who is still in business at 78 Nassau Street.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

T. R. LAMONT, the artist, who has just died in London, is said to have been the original of the Laird in "Trilby."

PROF. JAMES SETH, of Cornell University, author of "A Study of Ethical Principles," etc., has been elected professor of philosophy of Edinburgh University.

F. ANSTEY has just finished a new humorous story about the length of the "Tinted Venus." The scene is laid in London, and the tale bears the title, "Love Among the Lions."

THE author of "The Chatelaine," which was published last fall by The Peter Paul Book Co., under the pseudonym of G. E. X., is L. Ethel F. Painter, who is well known in Cleveland society.

WORTHINGTON C. FORD, chief of the Bureau of Statistics in the Treasury Department, has been retired, and his office transferred to O. P. Austin, a former newspaper correspondent. The change is generally regretted.

POULTNEY BIGELOW, who within a month has crossed Spain on a bicycle, will give the Spanish view of the situation in a series of articles which he is now preparing for Harper's Weekly. Mr. Bigelow will act as one of the war correspondents for the London Times.

READERS of Mrs. Coulson Kernahan's novel of medical life, "Trewinnot of Guy's," may be interested to learn that many of Trewinnot's experiences are the actual experiences of the late Arthur Dacre, the well-known actor, who was at one time a medical student of Guy's.

PERCY FITZGERALD has attacked Dr. Birkbeck Hill and his edition of Boswell's "Life of Johnson" in an 86-page quarto, entitled "A Critical Examination of Dr. G. Birkbeck Hill's 'Johnsonian' Editions." It is evidently prompted by jealousy, being written by the editor of an unsuccessful edition against the editor of an edition that is now regarded by the scholar as well as the literary public as definitive.

RICHARD HARDING DAVIS, who was present at the bombardment of Matanzas and near Cabanas Harbor, and at the most important prize captures, is Scribner's Magazine's chief war contributor, being under agreement to write for no other magazine upon this subject. His first article, "The First Shot of the War," will appear in the July number, to be followed by "The First Bombardment" and a rapid succession of other articles, all to be written from his personal observation on the flagship and despatch boats, and later accompanying the land forces. Mr. Davis has also been appointed war correspondent for the London Times.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—The Boston Book Company, 299 Fulton St., has gone out of business. Most of the stock was sold at a special sale, and the rest has been placed in storage in the same store, now occupied by a branch of the Goodyear Rubber Company. The business of the Boston Book Company was owned by T. F. Hayes, who was obliged to retire on account of ill-health. It has latterly been conducted by Mrs. Hayes, who, with Mr. Hayes, is now located at Dinsmore, Pa.

CHESTER, PA.—James Casey and Alfonso Carroll have opened a bookstore here.

CHICAGO, ILL.—Harry Falkenau, bookseller, has removed to 46 Madison St., between State St. and Wabash Ave.

CHICAGO, ILL.—The Relief Art Company, booksellers, O. W. Neeves, proprietor, announces that C. F. Neeves has been admitted as equal partner in the business, placing a sum of $6000 at the disposal of the firm.

CINCINNATI, O.—Henry Wark, of Gately, O'Gorman & Wark, booksellers, applied for a receiver, pleading that M. E. Gately and J. F. Supple, his partners, have failed in another firm, and a receiver is necessary to prevent the book firm from being sacrificed.

CLIFTON, KAN.—C. N. Berner, bookseller, has sold out to N. B. Needham.

DENVER, COL.—Kelly & Westling, 727 16th Street, are making extensive alterations and improvements in their store, contemplating extensions in the line of engraving and society stationery.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK.—The Wilson & Webb Book and Stationery Co. have not only agreed to hold open the positions of any of its employees who desire to enter the army, but they agree that the salary of each one shall go along and be paid just the same as if present and at work in the establishment.

LYNCHBURG, VA. —James A. Wilkins has opened a bookstore at 824 Main Street.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—C. N. Caspar Company (Inc.), H. Harnischfeger, president; Carl Weis, vice-president; and John C. Sundin, treasurer, have purchased from the assignee the business of C. N. Caspar, 437 E. Water Street, and the South Side Book Exchange, 304 Grove Street. The business will be continued at both stores under the management of C. N. Caspar, who acts as secretary and business manager of the company.

NEWPORT, R. I.—Charles E. Hammett, Jr., has been succeeded by Simon Hart, who has been with Mr. Hammett for twelve years. The business changed hands on May 16.

NEW YORK CITY.—The American Sunday-School Union has discontinued its branch depository, and, for the convenience of the city trade, opened an agency for the sale of its publications in New York City, at 158 Fifth Avenue, where the booksellers and friends of the society in the city can have their orders promptly filled. A complete assortment of the recent publications of the society will be kept in stock and displayed for examination. Booksellers in New England and in the State of New York outside of New York City will hereafter be supplied direct from the Home Office in Philadelphia, thus saving double shipments and insuring the filling of all orders.

PITTSTON, PA.—Charles R. Andrews, late of the firm of John McCrinde & Co , at Moosie, has bought J. C. Manning's Musical Hall bookstore. Mr. Manning will devote himself to his wholesale business. John Williams, late of the Music Hall bookstore, has opened a book and periodical business of his own.

SCIOTOVILLE, O.—Martin G. Chandler has reopened his book and stationery store in the building formerly occupied by him with the post-office. He carries a full line of books, etc.

SIOUX FALLS, S. DAK.—I. E. Youngblood, bookseller, has sold out to W. D. Simons.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—Louis and Harry Coe have bought an interest in the business of Ward M. Carter & Co., booksellers. The firm-name will hereafter be Coe, Carter & Coe.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—The co-operative book concern of the students of the Syracuse University are negotiating for a sale of the business to Foote, Bailey & Sackett.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

WILLIAM J. ADAMS has retired from business after forty-five years' service as superintendent of the manufacturing department of John P. Morton & Co., Louisville, Ky.

ELDON E. HAHN, 115 Dearborn Street, Chicago, has invented a "Book and Paper Cleaning Powder," which will remove all marks of dust and handling from books and papers and engravings.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will publish shortly a volume entitled "Faith and Doubt in the Poets of the Century," by R. A. Armstrong, of Liverpool; also, "The Conquered World and Other Papers," by Robert F. Horton, D.D.

G. REDWAY, London, has in press a memoir of James Hain Friswell, author of "The Gentle Life," by his daughter, Laura Hain Friswell. Mr. Friswell was for a number of years connected with the London Publishers' Circular.

TRUSLOVE & COMBA, 55 Fifth Avenue, New York, will publish early in June an enlarged and revised edition of "Hints for Small Libraries," an excellent manual for the bookseller as well as the librarian, by Mary W. Plummer, of the Pratt Institute Library.

THE BROTHERS OF THE BOOK, Gouverneur, N. Y., have just published "The Conclusion," by Walter Pater. The text used is that of the first edition of "Studies in the History of the Renaissance," London, 1873. The reprint is neatly done on handmade paper. The edition is limited to 270 copies.

A COPY of the first edition of Audubon's "Birds and Quadrupeds," consisting of the folio plates of the birds, the two smaller volumes of the plates of the quadrupeds and eight volumes of text, were sold last week at auction in New York for $1100. The work belonged to the estate of Aaron Raymond.

T. Y. CROWELL & CO. have just published "The Poems of Shakespeare," edited with an elaborate introduction and critical notes by George Wyndham, M.P. They have also nearly ready Victor Duruy's "General History of the World," edited, revised, and brought down to the present, by Prof. Edwin A. Grosvenor, of Amherst.

B. F. STEVENS, London, has ended the publication of his invaluable collection of facsimiles of manuscripts relating to America, the work consisting of twenty-five volumes. A complete index is provided, and a summary of the work by Mr. Stevens himself adds greatly to its value. His many friends will learn with much satisfaction that he has now regained his health after a long and serious illness.

LEE & SHEPARD have in preparation a new edition of Oliver Optic's stories, the earliest of which were revised by the author shortly before his death; also, new and cheaper editions of Sophie May's Quinnebassett Series, and of Amanda M. Douglas's novels. The title of Sophie May's new book, "Helena," has been changed to "Pauline Wyman." They will publish shortly the "John Hancock Letter Book," by Abraham English Brown, a portion of which has already been published in various newspapers.

D. C. HEATH & CO. have in press a carefully revised edition of Woodrow Wilson's "The State." The main outlines of the book have been retained, substantially unaltered; but its text has been revised by the author from end to end, and the new edition is to be printed from entirely new plates. The lists of authorities at the end of the chapters have been extended to include all the more noteworthy books easily accessible to English readers, which have appeared since 1889, the date of the original edition.

L. C. PAGE & CO., Boston, have just issued "Paul Krüger and His Times," a highly eulogistic survey of the achievements of the great Boer by F. Reginald Statham; also, "Sons of Adversity," an Elizabethan novel by L. Cope Cornford. They will publish in June "In Kings' Houses," by Mrs. Julia C. R. Dorr, with illustrations by F. T. Merrill; "Bobbie McDuff," by Clinton Ross, with illustrations by B. W. Clinedinst; and "The Making of a Saint," by W. Somerset Maugham. They have in preparation "New Folly," by Maria Louise Pool, whose "In a Dyke Shanty" and "Boss and Other Dogs," formerly issued by Stone & Kimball, have recently been transferred to the list of this house.

A YOUNG man representing himself as Mr. McIlwrath, of Chillicothe, Mo., has attempted to swindle several book and stationery firms in the East through the threadbare check game. He pretends to be on a wedding trip, and introduces a young woman as his wife. After buying a stock of goods he leaves, saying that he will have a parcel from some other house sent for enclosure. Either later in the day or on the next day he returns with the news that the firm —generally Wanamaker—from whom he has made a purchase refuses to deliver the goods without cash, and not knowing him will not accept check. "Now, couldn't you accommodate me," etc. So far he hasn't been accommodated by very many in the trade, though some have been victimized, according to word received from the bona-fide Mr. McIlwrath, of Chillicothe, who is thoroughly reliable. The trade is cautioned to be on the lookout for the young groom and his bride.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES.

THE Librairie Nilsson, (Per Lamm,) Paris, announces a counterpart to "Poole's Index" in "Répertoire Bibliographique des principales revues françaises, pour l'année 1897." The work will be edited by D. Jordell, the editor of the "Catalogue Annuel de la librarie francaise," and will be an author and subject index of the contributions and original memoirs published in 142 French periodicals, including the Revue des Deux Mondes, Monde Moderne, and Cosmopolis.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

☞ Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay," booksellers should take the usual precaution, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

A Tale of Forest Love and Chivalry. Just Ready.

The Forest Lovers.
By Maurice Hewlett.
Cloth, 12mo, $1.50.

"The plot is boldly conceived and strongly sustained; the characters are vigorously drawn and are thrown into striking contrast. . . . It is touched with the penetrating power of the imagination; it has human interest and idyllic loveliness."—From a review by HAMILTON W. MABIE.

Rural Missouri Life Characteristically Described. To be Published Next Week.

At You All's House.
By Jas. Newton Baskett.
Cloth, 12mo, $1.50.

"Mr. Baskett has run the thread of the love-story told in these pages through rural experiences of many kinds, in the hope of bringing before the imagination the world of Missouri farm life, and of illustrating some of those ways of human helpfulness which make for the increase of knowledge as well as of happiness."—From the Preface.

Old-Time Reminiscences of Railroading in the United States.

The General Manager's Story.
By Herbert E. Hamblen,
Author of "On Many Seas."
Cloth, 12mo, $1.50.
Illustrated from life by W. D. STEVENS.

Mr. Hamblen has an extraordinary memory for details and his ability to write a dramatic story was proven in his earlier book, "On Many Seas," the most vivid picture of the sailor's life drawn for years. His new book is equally good, and there is no lack of exciting chapters—about train-robbers, the organization of a strike, a collision with an excursion train, an encounter with a drunken engineer—and no less interesting accounts of the secrets of managing an engine, of signalling orders, of the rules of the road and of risks run in obeying them. It will be a revelation to many, but every reader who knows the life has commented on the book as a marvellously accurate picture.

A keen, comprehensive study of modern life.

The Gospel of Freedom.
By Robert Herrick,
University of Chicago.
Cloth, 12mo, $1.50.

"The greatest novel of American social life in a broad, up-to-date sense, yet contributed to American fiction."—Inter-Ocean.

"One of the sanest, most artistic novels that have ever come out of the West."—J. L. W., in Book News.

"A novel which is likely to be widely read."—GEORGE R. CARPENTER, Columbia University.

Stories of the American Navy.

Yankee Ships and Yankee Sailors.
By James Barnes.
Cloth, 12mo, $1.50.
Illustrated by R. F. ZOGBAUM and C. T. CHAPMAN.

While "On Many Seas" gives the best existing picture of the sailor's life in the navy or out, Mr. Barnes' book presents a series of incidents chiefly based on history, but not ignoring tradition, which will enable its readers to gain a clear understanding of the difficulties in the way of the earlier formation of the navy and of the spirit with which its ships have been handled since.

The Annual American Catalogue, 1897

THE ANNUAL AMERICAN CATALOGUE for 1897 contains:

(1) Directory of American Publishers issuing books in 1897.

(2) Full-title Record, with descriptive notes, in author alphabet, of all books recorded in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, 1897.

(3) Author-, title-, and subject-index to same, in one alphabet.

(4) Publishers' annual lists for 1897.

This volume forms the THIRD ANNUAL SUPPLEMENT to the AMERICAN CATALOGUE, 1890–95.

One volume, half leather, $3.50; in sheets, $3.00.

The edition, as usual, is a limited one. The volumes for 1890 to 1893 are all out of print, and orders for those of 1894, 1895, and 1896, to ensure supply, should be promptly filed. THE ANNUAL ENGLISH CATALOGUE, for which we have the American market, now includes full title entries, after the manner of the American volume, instead of the previous abbreviated entries. It will be furnished at $1.50 paper, or bound with the American in one volume, half leather, at $5.00, net.

"Summer Reading."

To Retail Dealers:

THE SUMMER CATALOGUE, issued for twenty years, has been found so useful and profitable by enterprising dealers in working up business during the slow summer season, that it has become a regular feature of the trade. The twenty-first issue, with an attractive cover, in a special pamphlet adapted for imprint circulation all through the summer, will be published in connection with THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY about the first of June.

The imprint editions will contain, in addition to a catalogue of guide-books and light literature for summer reading, an entirely new selection of reading-matter both of a practical and entertaining character, chiefly intended for the use and amusement of tourists, pleasure-seekers, and visitors of summer resorts.

Booksellers should remember that, while summer is usually a dull time, the sales of light literature, etc., can be pushed to make a successful business even in this season. The classes who travel are of course those who have money to spend, even in dull times, and the summer is the time when very many bookbuyers do the greater part of their reading. Booksellers at or near summer resorts should especially avail themselves of this publication, while city dealers should remember that it will also be useful to tempt stay-at-homes to make investments, or to follow up customers otherwise out of reach.

☞ Orders for imprint editions at subscription rates should be sent in at once, as the quantity is limited.
